Mountains in Asia.

The Himmalaya Mountains, in Thibet, are the highest at present known, except two in Upper Peru, which, according to Mr. Pentland, possess an equal altitude. According to Dr. Gerard, in the Valley of Sulei, among the Himmalaya Mountains, there is one village 14,700 feet above the level of the sea. These mountains are pastured by the Thibetian goat. Crops of rye are grown at the elevation of 14,900 feet.
