

prepared to hear. A warfare was, however, kept up between the individuals belonging to the rival nations of England and the United States, which afforded ample room for the tongue of scandal to indulge itself. The missionaries wisely abstained from all connexion with either party; and the governor, with much energy and decorum, sustained with impartiality the supremacy of the laws.

STREET VIEW AT HONOLULU.