

PLATE XXVI.

	Page.
Fig. 1. PTYCHOPARIA ADAMSI	195
1. Head from the "Red Sandrock," east of Highgate Springs. Collection U. S. National Museum.
1a, 1b. Narrow and broad form of head from the limestone "lentile," two miles east of Swanton. Collection U. S. National Museum.
1c. Nearly entire specimen from Parker's quarry. Original in the collection of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, Cambridge, Massachusetts.
Fig. 2. PTYCHOPARIA PIOCHENSIS	201
2, 2a. View of two heads that vary a little in detail. Collection U. S. National Museum.
2b. Free cheek associated with 2, 2a. (See plate xxviii.) Collection U. S. National Museum.
Fig. 3. PTYCHOPARIA TEUCER	197
3. View of specimen from the "Red Sandrock," east of Highgate Springs. Collection U. S. National Museum.
Fig. 4. PTYCHOPARIA VULCANUS	198
4. Compressed specimen from Parker's quarry. Collection U. S. National Museum.
4a. More perfect specimen from the "Red Sandrock," east of Highgate Springs. Collection U. S. National Museum.
Fig. 5. OLENOIDES MARCOUI	186
5, 5a. Head and pygidium from the arenaceous shales of Parker's quarry. Collection U. S. National Museum.
5b. Interior of pygidium. Collection U. S. National Museum.	