

PLATE XXXI.

	Page.
Fig. 1. BATHYNOTUS HOLOPYGA .....	191
1. View of a nearly perfect specimen; the long eye-lobes are crushed down. Natural size. Collection U. S. National Museum.
1a. View of the free cheeks and hypostoma in position. Collection U. S. National Museum.
Fig. 2. PROTYPUS SENECTUS .....	213
2. View of flattened specimen. Collection U. S. National Museum.
2a. Specimen laterally compressed. Collection U. S. National Museum.
2b, 2c. Pygidium associated with the heads 2 and 2a. Collection U. S. Na- tional Museum.
Fig. 3. ASAPHISCUS WHEELERI .....	220
3. A figure partially restored, as a portion of the pygidium and free cheeks is broken away in the type specimens. Collection U. S. National Mu- seum.
3a. A head that has a strongly-marked glabella. Free cheeks broken away.
Fig. 4. PROTYPUS HITCHCOCKI .....	211
4. Figure of the type specimen. (After Whitfield.) Collection American Museum Natural History, New York City.	