

PLATE XXXII.

	Page.
Figs. 1-12. MATTHEVIA VARIABILIS	222
1, 2, 3. End, side, and summit views of the most characteristic form, enlarged.
4. Associated operculum, with portions of the shell removed.
5. A more conical form than 1.
6. Cast of the interior of another operculum.
7, 8, 9. Summit, end, and side views of the conical variety, having a deeply sinuous margin.
10. Transverse septum crossing the inner chamber of the shell, as at s' in fig. 1 a , pl. xxxiii.
11. Section of the apex broken off at the septa, in the inner chambers.
12. Enlargement of the inner surface of the chamber of habitation.
The originals of the above are in the collections of the U. S. National Museum.	