

- Repsold, measurements of, i. 322.
 Retrospect and prospect, ii. 741 et seq.
 Reuchlin, i. 163.
 Revett. See Stuart.
 Revolution, French, added the modern practical popularisation of science, i. 145.
 Revolutionary theories not practical, i. 79.
 Reye, 'Geometrie der Lage,' ii. 669.
 Ribbeck, 'Friedr. Wilh. Ritschl,' i. 169, 173.
 Ribot, 'Modern German Psychology,' ii. 495; 'Psychologie Allemande Contemporaine,' 511; 513.
 Richelieu, his "metallic" interest in science, i. 105; first statistical bureau, ii. 561.
 Richelot at Königsberg with Neumann and Bessel, ii. 54.
 Richter, astronomical constants, i. 322; pendulum experiments of, 354.
 Richet, Ch., 'Physiologie des Muscles et des Nerfs,' i. 293, ii. 519.
 Richter, J. B., chemical equivalents, i. 189; 313; theory of fixed proportions, 393; 398; atomic theory, 416; the "equivalent" of an element, 419.
 Richter, W., theory of "Panspermia," ii. 369.
 Riecke, memoir of Plücker, ii. 75; Eloge of Weber, 197.
 Riemann, B., i. 45; 'Hypothesen der Geometrie,' 200; Fourier's series, 241; celebrated dissertation of, 243; views on ideas of space, 352; 'Werke,' ii. 63; researches into electrical phenomena, 67; 254, 635; and Cauchy, 693, 699; on Abelian functions, 699; his work, 700; his surface, 701; 704, 706; and Weierstrass compared, 707; on hypotheses of geometry, 710; 717, 718.
 Riess, frictional electricity, i. 205; statical electricity and the Geissler tubes, ii. 191.
 Rindfleisch, Ed. von. 'Arztliche Philosophie,' ii. 379, 437.
 Ritschl, Friedr. Wilh., indebtedness of, to Bentley, i. 169; quoted, 172; conducted philological seminaries, 214; language, ii. 540.
 Ritter, Karl, comparative geography, ii. 226; extension of morphological view, 260; 300.
 Rüber, construction of the heptagon, ii. 722.
 Robertson, Croom, calls Hobbes's the first English system of philosophy, i. 48; 282; 'Mind,' ii. 512; on Münsterberg's work, 522.
 Robertson, David, naturalist, i. 288.
 Roberval, referred to by Voltaire, i. 105; taught at the Collège de France, 107.
 Robespierre, i. 107.
 Robin, 'Traité d'Anatomie générale,' ii. 266.
 Robison, John, on Boscovich's theory, i. 358, 359; publisher of Black's lectures, ii. 102.
 "Rochdale Pioneers," ii. 566.
 Rochow, von, educational work of, i. 256.
 Rogers, W. G., illustrations of Helmholtz's theories, ii. 63.
 Rokitansky, Vienna school of medicine, i. 198, 208.
 Roman system of registration, ii. 561.
 Romanes, 'Darwin and after Darwin,' ii. 346; 436.
 Romanticism, reactionary movement of, i. 82.
 Romberg, medical school of, i. 208.
 Romé de l'Isle, contributions to crystallography, i. 117, 118, ii. 241.
 Römer, Claus, motion of light, ii. 10.
 Romme, Gilbert, quoted, i. 110.
 Röntgen, discovery of X rays, ii. 92.
 Roscher, 'Gesch. d. National-Oekonomie,' ii. 555; statistics, 563.
 Rüschaub influenced by the Naturphilosophie, i. 207.
 Roscoe, Sir H., 'John Dalton,' i. 417.
 Rose, H., i. 174; the greatest analytical chemist of the century, 399.
 Rose, H. and G., chemists, i. 188.
 Rosenberger, 'Geschichte der Physik,' i. 308, 359, 433, ii. 8, 11, 178, 506; 'Die moderne Entwicklung der elektrischen Principien,' 90; physical nature and "perpetual motion," 124.
 Rosenkranz on the encyclopædists, i. 34.
 Ross, Sir James, confirms calculations of Gauss as to south magnetic pole, i. 331.
 Rothmann, i. 157.
 Rousseau, influence on Herder, i. 50; gospel of nature, 51; and the "Aufklärung" period, 60; 107; destructive revolutionary work of, 110; popularised botanising, 127; centre of reaction against school of Voltaire, Buffon, &c., 145; 163; influence of, on German thought and literature, 212; 253, 256; valuable side of his ideas developed outside of France, 259; 285, ii. 415; language, 536.