

CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTION.

	PAGES
FIRST PERIOD—GEOLOGICAL KNOWLEDGE IN THE AGES OF ANTIQUITY - - - -	I-11
SECOND PERIOD—THE BEGINNINGS OF PALÆON- TOLOGY AND GEOLOGY - - - -	11-46
Various opinions about Fossils, 13; Hypotheses of the Earth's origin and history, 23; Beginnings of geological observation, 34; G. L. Leclerc de Buffon, 41; Volcanoes and earthquakes, 44.
THIRD PERIOD—THE HEROIC AGE OF GEOLOGY FROM 1790-1820 - - - -	46-145

Pallas and De Saussure, 49; A. G. Werner and his school, 56; Leopold von Buch, 61; Alexander von Humboldt, 64; Hutton, Playfair, and J. Hall, 67; Theories of the Earth's origin proposed by De Luc, De la Métherie, Breislak, Kant, Laplace, 75; Local geognostic descriptions and stratigraphy: (a) Germany, 81; (b) Austria-Hungary and the Alps, 87; (c) Italy, 94; (d) France, Belgium, Holland, and the Iberian Peninsula, 100; (e) Great Britain, 108; (f) Scandinavia and Russia, 115; (g) America, Asia, Australia, Africa, 119; Progress of Petrography: Neptunists, Volcanists, and Plutonists, 122; Palæontology, 125; Text-books and handbooks of Geognosy and Geology, 142.